Report on Student Participation in National Maha Lok Adalat at District Court, Nagpur

Date: 3/3/2024

Legal Aid Centre, Symbiosis Law School, Nagpur

On 3rd March, 2024, students of Symbiosis Law School, Nagpur, and members of the Legal Aid Centre, actively participated in the National Maha Lok Adalat organized at the District Court in Nagpur. The event provided an invaluable opportunity for students to witness and engage with real-life legal proceedings, gaining insights into various aspects of the legal system.

The National Maha Lok Adalat at Nagpur District Court focused on resolving cases through alternative dispute resolution mechanisms, emphasizing conciliation and settlement. The cases presented ranged from bank debt recovery issues to complex land disputes, offering a diverse and comprehensive exposure to legal challenges. The students observed multiple bank debt recovery cases where financial institutions sought to recover outstanding debts through legal proceedings. This experience deepened their understanding of the intricacies involved in such cases, including the legal frameworks governing debt recovery. Further, the land dispute cases showcased the property rights and the varied approaches taken to resolve such matters. The students witnessed firsthand the challenges faced by individuals involved in these disputes and the role of legal mechanisms in finding equitable solutions.

Total 12 members of the Legal Aid Centre actively engaged in the lok adalat alongwith the staff of DLSA, Nagpur understanding the procedure of settling the pending matters of the litigants, procedural aspects, and the benefits of alternative dispute resolution. This allowed students to comprehend the practical application of legal knowledge and the significance of legal aid in ensuring access to justice.

The panelists for the Lok Adalat were esteemed judges from the District Court, Nagpur. Their expertise and experience in adjudicating disputes added significant value to the event, creating a platform for meaningful discussions on dispute resolution techniques. Participation in the National Maha Lok Adalat proved to be an enriching experience for the students of Symbiosis

Law School, Nagpur. The exposure to diverse cases broadened their perspectives on legal issues, while witnessing the proceedings in a real courtroom setting enhanced their understanding of legal processes. The event also highlighted the importance of conciliation and settlement in legal practice, emphasizing the potential for amicable resolutions outside traditional courtrooms.
